

GERMAN RIGHT DRIVEN BACK OVER FRONTIER

ALLIES CAPTURE SOUAIN AND ONE THOUSAND PRISONERS, BUT LOSE BRIMONT.

100,000 FRESH TROOPS ON WAY TO AID GEN. VON KLUCK

Trenches Flooded and Troops Battle Waist Deep in Water—Magnificent Cathedral Where Joan of Arc Crowned King Destroyed by German Fire—French Government Is Preparing a Protest to the Nations—German Wounded Slain in Hospitals—German Assaults Fail.

Paris.—The Germans attempted to break the left wing of the allies and were thrown back.

Key positions were taken and retaken, but the result of the eighth day's fighting sees the English and French still on the offensive, with the Germans massing troops behind entrenchments for new counter attacks.

Repulsing most violent blows against their left wing between the Oise and the Aisne, the allies recovered lost ground and advanced their line north and east of Rheims, where lies the center of the battle.

The Germans failed in a terrific assault upon the French center. They took the heights of Brimont, but lost the hill of Pompey.

Gen. von Kluck's army is being heavily re-enforced. One hundred thousand troops are coming through Belgium by way of Maubeuge.

The ancient cathedral at Rheims is in ruins and the French government is preparing a protest to the nations. On the east center, the allies won a definite victory, capturing Souain and taking 1,000 prisoners. On the east, the crown prince continues to give way before determined assaults, while Vosges and Lorraine, it is reported, the Germans have been driven across the frontier.

The line of battle remained much the same as on preceding days—from the Oise and the Aisne, north of Craonne, Rheims and Neufchateau through the plains of Chalons to the forest of the Argonne. Nothing displays more clearly the strength of the German resistance and the indecisiveness of the whole combat than these virtually unchanged lines.

Along this line the Germans put in motion an attack carefully prepared. They sought to overwhelm Gen. French and supporting troops in the vicinity of Chauny. Masses of infantry and artillery were dashed against the allies, but after fighting of the most terrible description, the effort failed and the Germans were repulsed back to their trenches.

Another German Flag Taken. Paris.—The French war office issued the following communication: "On our left wing we have again made slight advance along the right bank of the River Oise. "A division of Algerians captured another flag.

"All the efforts of the Germans, supported by strong artillery, to smash our front between Craonne and Rheims have been repulsed.

Reports Indicate German Retreat. London.—Reports indicate the German right is giving away before the French and British. Echo de Paris declares it has the best authority for stating that Gen. von Kluck who has sustained heavy losses, is planning a retreat to Ardennes, where he will make another stand.

Half Million Italians Under Arms. Rome.—Italy already has more than half a million men under arms. The best of these troops are in camp and barracks in the Lombardy and Venetian provinces.

German Disable British Cruiser. London.—The German protected cruiser Koenigsberg caught the British light cruiser Pegasus overhauling her machinery in Zanzibar harbor and attacked and completely disabled her. The British lost heavily. The Koenigsberg was able to steam away. The German cruiser while of the same class as the British, had more modern guns, which outranged those of her antagonist. The British loss is given at 25 killed and 80 wounded.

Arrested for Murder After 22 Years. Pittsburgh, Pa.—That "murder will out" was exemplified in the arrest of Joseph M. Carr of 128 Harrison street, Chicago, for the murder of his brother in this city 22 years ago. The prisoner will likely be brought to this city in a few days to confront an indictment that has lain forgotten for years in an old desk in the district attorney's office and was unearthed recently by accident.

GERMAN GENERAL REPORTS DEFEAT OF RUSS ARMY

News From Von Hindenberg Is That He Has Checked the Advance of Czar's Armies.

CLAIMS IMPORTANT VICTORY

With the Austrians Constantly Failing Back, the Announcement of Success Is Welcomed at Berlin—Allies Continue to Push Back Invading Forces—Germany Has Partial Successes—Peace Rumors Are in the Air, Though They May Come to Nothing.

It was officially announced in Berlin that General von Hindenberg had telegraphed Emperor William that the Russian army of Vilna, composed of the Second, Third, Fourth and Twentieth army corps, two reserve divisions, and five divisions of cavalry, had been completely defeated by the Germans. The Russian casualties were heavy.

The number of Russian prisoners is increasing. General von Hindenberg goes on, and the destruction of the Russian army continues. There have been spoils of war in enormous quantities.

The Russian army of Gordin has been defeated at Lyck. It comprises in addition to the Twenty-second corps the remnant of the Sixth corps and a part of the Third Siberian corps. Germans assert lines are holding. A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company of London from Berlin, coming by way of Amsterdam, gives the following statement of the German headquarters staff, dated 9 p. m., Thursday evening:

"The battle which has been continuing for the last two days on the right wing of our western army extends to the eastern armies in the neighborhood of Verdun.

"Until now the Germans have been partly successful in some parts of the extended battlefield. A general battle is still continuing."

French Official Statement. The official information given out by the ministry of war, September 17, said:

"On our left wing our armies are in close contact with the enemy on the whole front from the heights north of the River Aisne, west and south of Rheims.

"On the center our forward movement between the Argonne district and the Meuse continues. "It is absolutely untrue, as has been published time and again by the official Wolff agency, that the army of the crown prince is besieging and bombarding Verdun. This city has never been attacked. Only the fort of Troyon, which is not a part of the defenses of Verdun, but protects the heights of Meuse, has been bombarded on several occasions. It is known that the violent attacks of which it has been the object have not succeeded and that since Wednesday it has been relieved.

"There is nothing to report concerning the right wing.

"In the Vosges and in Alsace the situation is unchanged.

"In Belgium the Belgian army is continuing to operate around Antwerp, causing serious losses to the enemy."

Britain Out $166,500,000. Calculations based on official returns show that the cost to Britain of 43 days of war, continuing from August 1, when disbursements began, has been about $166,500,000, or at the rate of $3,870,000 per day.

Announce Fall of Maubeuge. Berlin has officially announced that the fall of Maubeuge took place on September 9, with 400 guns and 40,000 prisoners.

French Surgeons Who Have Been at the Front Relate Some of Their Experiences.

The eight French medical officers who were captured by the Germans in Namur, but who later were released and are on their way back to France by way of England, gave some interesting side lights on the situation in the field from their standpoint as surgeons.

gram telegraphs from Boulogne that he was in the vicinity of Maubeuge September 11 and that the forts were still holding out. The German report of the fall of Maubeuge has never been confirmed.

A French official statement says: "1. On our left wing the enemy continues his retreating movement. He has evacuated Amiens, falling back to the eastward between Soissons and Reims. The Germans have retired northward from the Vesle. They have not defended the Marne to the south-east of Reims.

"2. At the center the enemy, though it has lost Rivigny and Brabant-le-Roi, still holds the south end of the Forest of Argonne.

"On our right the hostile forces which were along the Meurthe are beating a retreat beyond St. Die and Lunéville. We have recaptured Draon, Le Tape, Baccarat, Remireville, Nancy and Pontamousson.

"In the Belgian field of operation the Belgian army has vigorously taken the offensive to the south of Liège. "Mourn for German Regiment. There have been many pitiful scenes enacted at the headquarters of the One Hundred and Fourteenth German infantry, says a dispatch from Constance, Italy. The regiment is reported to have been practically destroyed. Thousands of Belgians Slain. A telegram to the London Observer from a correspondent at Antwerp dated last Thursday says:

"The authorities are preparing an official casualty list of the operations at Liège and I am informed it will show that no fewer than 27,000 Belgian soldiers were killed in that heroic defense."

German Death List 6,535. There is a high death rate among the German officers. The ratio of wounded to the dead is about two to one. The total casualties, as given in Berlin, are 6,535 killed, 8,391 seriously and 42,242 slightly wounded.

Germany Hears of Retreat. News of the German retreat, despite every precaution, has passed through Switzerland to the north and caused profound depression in Germany, after so many announced victories, says a London dispatch.

According to advices received at Geneva, Switzerland, people have gathered in the streets in various German towns, shouting: "Tell us the truth! Give us the news!"

The newspaper offices at Munich have been closed, as disorders are feared.

It is also reported that news of the steady retirement of the Germans in France has trickled into Berlin and benumbed the people.

Along the Swiss-German frontier the full extent of the German retreat is known. People are crying: "If the French have beaten us, what will the Russians do?"

President's Reply to Protest. President Wilson replied to protests from both the warring factions in Europe against alleged breaches of the rules of warfare. His reply in each case can be summed up in the declaration that for the United States to express judgment on the matters at issue would not be consistent with its neutrality.

The text of the president's address in reply to the Belgian commissioners who came to the White House to protest against alleged German atrocities to non-combatants, followed closely that of the reply to Kaiser Wilhelm on the latter's charge that the allies are using dum dum expanding bullets. His reply to President Poincaré's protest was along the same lines.

Germany Would Talk Peace. Germany has suggested informally that the United States undertake to elicit from Great Britain, France and Russia a statement of the terms under which the allies would make peace.

The suggestion was made by the imperial chancellor, Von Bethmann-Hollweg, to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin as a result of an inquiry sent by the American government to learn whether Emperor William was desirous of discussing peace, as Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and Oscar Strauss recently had reported.

No reply was made by Emperor Wilhelm.

"We were obliged to work with the Germans," one of them said. "Most of the wounded were anxious to return to the fight as soon as possible."

"We saw no evidence of men wounded by dum dum bullets on either side. We found the medical services of both the Germans and allies excellent, but we regret that the German wounded often were discharged from the hospitals too early. In some cases their wounds had not sufficiently healed and after their discharge the wounds would open again and complications set in."

himself nor did the imperial chancellor indicate whether or not he spoke on behalf of his monarch.

Put Stewart Loss at $5,000. G. F. Stewart, correspondent of the London Daily News, telegraphs from Rotterdam: "I learn from a private but absolutely reliable source that during the last fortnight the Germans have been losing in killed, wounded, and missing an average of 3,200 men per day. This represents a loss of roughly 45,000 men, of whom it is estimated 14,000 were killed."

Slaughter in East Prussia. The London Morning Post correspondent at Petrograd wires:

"On the East Prussian front the German encircling movement, by which it was hoped to cut off a considerable body of Russian troops still remaining in that theater of war, has been completely frustrated and the Germans have been severely punished in the attempt.

"Accounts now are beginning to appear of the scenes on the battlefields abandoned by the Austro-German forces last week. They paint pictures of unending horror. Streams are choked with the slain, trodden down in headlong flight, until the waters are dammed and overflowing their banks. Piles of slain were awaiting burial or burning. Hundreds of acres were sown with dead and littered with weapons and articles of equipment. Wounded and riderless horses were carousing madly over the abandoned country."

REVIEW OF THE WAR
Probable Situation, as Viewed by the Associate Editor of the Army and Navy Journal.

New York.—The German line holds fast to its intrenchments, following the Aisne river from ten miles west of Soissons to the mouth of the Sulphe and then curving southward to Mont-faucon, northwest of Verdun. All along the lines the allies are making assaults, but it cannot be made out from the reports whether they are pushed home with the idea of breaking down the German resistance or whether they are made merely to hold the Germans in position while the turning movement to the west is taking form.

Now is the time when the arrival of a new British army might turn the tide of battle for the allies. The 165,000 of Great Britain's first effort are in the battle line, apparently in two separate bodies, one southeast of Soissons and one near the Oise river. With 360,000 regulars, 315,000 territorials and 300,000 volunteers to draw on, Great Britain must by now be sending to the front forces that will soon double the present strength given in the reports.

Germans Gaining Time. The German right now has occupied the line of the Aisne for six days, most valuable days for recovering its fighting strength. Whatever the plan by which the allies' moves are guided, it should bring early results.

The Belgians now control all of their country north of the Scheldt river. Their activity in raids against the German detachments is producing important results. In forcing the Germans to maintain a large garrison to protect the routes through the Meuse valley on which they are now absolutely dependent for the supply of their army. By these tactics the Belgians are able to hold back from the battle line forces of Germans much greater in number than their own army.

Russians Retreat Far. The reports about the operations in East Prussia have been suppressed to such an extent that it is not possible to outline events definitely. The Berlin dispatches claim that their advance has reached Grodno; the Petrograd dispatches state that the Russians have fallen back to the line of their border forts. For once the dispatches agree, but they indicate a retreat of 140 miles by the Russians.

The success of the Russians on the San river bids fair to force the Austrians to fall back from this position. This does not mean that the way lies open for the Russians to advance against Silesia in Germany.

OWNER RECOVERS $4240 BANK LOOT

TWENTY-YEAR-OLD YOUTH SAYS HE WAS FORCED TO AID IN HOMESTEAD HOLDUP.

NOW CONSCIENCE STRICKEN

Declares He Purposely Ditched Auto in Flight to Chicago—Expert Bank Robber Planned and Executed the Job.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Joseph Kaufmann 20 years old, a Chicago electrician, has returned $4,240 to the officials of the Homestead Bank, which was robbed by two men on Aug. 17, with the confession that he was a participant against his will in the robbery.

He said a man known to him as Frank Wilson, but who has been identified from photographs in police gallery as Frank G. Hohl, an expert bank robber, who recently broke jail after robbing a bank at Altoona, Pa., compelled him, at the point of a revolver, to assist in the robbery, and that he had been conscience stricken ever since.

Posing as a wealthy young banker, and giving his name as Frank Wilson, Hohl made the acquaintance of young Kaufmann in a pool room in Chicago early in July. Kaufmann says in his confession that "Wilson" spent money lavishly and treated him so as to win his friendship. In August he proposed an automobile trip to Pittsburg and asked Kaufmann to go with him as his guest. Kaufmann consented willingly, and they started in a big yellow car.

At Newark, O., Hohl told Kaufmann that he was not a banker, but a bank robber, and that they were then on their way to rob a bank at Homestead. Kaufmann refused to have anything to do with the affair and then Hohl, according to the confession, whipped out a revolver and threatened to kill his young companion unless he agreed to do what he was told.

That night, fearing that he might run away, Hohl is said to have tied Kaufmann to him with a rope. Next day when a couple miles out of Homestead, the men left the automobile and walked into the town, after taking cocaine to steady their nerves and make them daring, as Hohl explained. Hohl then gave Kaufmann a revolver, loaded with blank cartridges and drilled him in his part of the coming robbery, explaining that he was to stand on the outside of the bank and fire the blank cartridges at anyone who might attempt to interrupt the robbery.

Kaufmann did as ordered, and while Hohl went into the bank and held up the cashier, he fired several shots at pedestrians attracted to the place by the sound of Hohl's shots.

Kaufmann became so uneasy about his part in the robbery that he went to an attorney in Chicago, who advised him to make immediate restitution. He did so, but the news was suppressed until the present time by detectives who hoped to trap Hohl if he should attempt to communicate with Kaufmann.
